Reflection:

Working on this group project has given me the opportunity to contribute mainly to the design and planning aspects of the application. My role is to focus on creating the UI for the Trainers page and designing the ERM diagram. Through these tasks, I gained a better understanding of how important both visual design and system planning are in developing a functional and user-friendly application.

While designing the UI, I focused on creating a layout that would be visually appealing, easy to navigate, and interactive for users. I considered how users would interact with trainers and move through the application smoothly. Creating the interface also helped me improve my skills in wireframing, layout structuring, and thinking from the user's perspective to ensure a positive user experience.

So far, my experience in the project has been both challenging and rewarding. One challenge was ensuring that the UI design matched the needs of users while also aligning with the overall goals of the project. Another challenge was understanding how different entities connect within the database structure. These challenges helped me improve my problem-solving, teamwork, and design-thinking skills.
